

March 2021

THE KILN POST

There is light at the end of the tunnel! We are now working with Tucson Botanical Garden and Tohono Chul for shows in October and November this year and our usual show at Tohono Chul in February 2022. Exact dates and more details will be available as we follow the process of Covid and the vaccinations. But things look good.

Reminder:

Tohono Chul has offered to feature one or two juried members in their gift shops for the next few months. Send photos to the head of retail, Linda Wolfe (lwolfe@tohonochul.org). Sales would be on a 50/50 commission and artists will be featured in their publicity venues.

The virtual exhibition
Cyberclay
has been cancelled.

The Fundamentals of Slip Casting

With Jonathan Kaplan

Have you ever wanted to reproduce identical forms quickly and efficiently? Or want to make a piece that cannot be made by conventional means? Slip casting is a process that can cover all of this.

If you are interested in learning more about slip casting and mold making, here's your chance to learn from one of the best. On March 27, 2021, ceramic artist, educator, author, designer, and master mold maker, Jonathan Kaplan, will give a lecture and answer your questions about the fundamentals of slip casting and mold making.

Online Zoom Lecture

March 27, 2021, 10AM-11:30 AM.

$35.00 for members, $45.00 for nonmembers

Registration Closes: March 23, 2021

At the lecture, Jonathan will give a digital presentation about slip casting, talk about the fundamentals of mold making, share tips, and answer your questions. He'll also provide participants with a syllabus and other digital documents with useful information.

Once you have registered, participants will receive an email confirmation and instructions on how to attend the lecture via Zoom.
